Dear Sir or Madam,

Your company has released information about my firm that is defamatory in nature and has caused my firm significant economic harm. This information can be found at the following link(s):

<https://3dprint.com/120727/ebay-licensing-3d-models/>

Among numerous false claims made by your company, you allege that my firm was engaged in violating thousands of copyrights when, in fact, we had not received even a single DMCA, Cease and Desist, or other formal allegation even alleging that we were infringing on a single copyright-let alone been found liable in court for such an infringement.

Your misrepresentation of our firm caused us to lose an entire product line that was proving to be very profitable in its test phase (see Exhibit One). This product line on one outlet alone, eBay.com, was projected to generate $2,000,000 a month in gross profits within one to two years. The present value of this revenue stream over the next decade was well over $100,000,000 and could have been as high as $200,000,000 depending on the discount rate utilized. My firm had the equipment, personnel, and experience to realize the profits from this product line before the defamatory information released by your firm caused our permanent suspension from eBay.com. (see Exhibit Two)

In addition to the lost product line, my firm was also damaged by losing a contract that would have been worth $10,000/year in gross profit to us, losing two advisors from our board of directors who did not wish for any further negative press to mention them, losing untold business from having your defamatory information listed right below our website in online search engine results, losing at least one potential employee, losing investment opportunities, having untold damage done to our brand and our employees' reputation, and having numerous death threats and pejorative remarks levied at anyone/any firm associated with my firm.

As my firm is not a large firm, we do not have the funds required for properly redressing this enormous harm done to us by your company's complete and utter reckless publishing of defamatory material and subsequent refusal to retract said information. However, at the very least we are asking the State of Pennsylvania to grant us the $12,000 that Small Claims Court allows us to request.

Sincerely,

Ryan Simms

Exhibit B: Indefinite Removal from eBay.com

Activity on your eBay account

Hello just3dprint,

eBay is built on trust, and we want our marketplace to be safe for both buyers and sellers. We reviewed your account because of concerns with your selling activity. Based on our review, we've taken the following actions on your account:

- Indefinitely removed your ability to sell. You can't use other accounts or register new accounts to sell on eBay. If you do, your accounts could be limited, restricted, or suspended.
- Removed any of your listings. A list of any removed items will be listed further down in this email.
- We have credited any associated fees to your account.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DOCUMENT REVIEW

We need you to read the following acknowledgments to ensure that you are satisfied with the filing, the wording in the Statement of Claim and/or the Landlord Tenant Complaint form and that you agree that all personal information has been removed from each and every document used in your filing since our docket is available for public viewing.

1. You agree that you have read the entire filing and agree with the wording, terminology and content.
2. You agree that all of the names, addresses (including suite, apartment numbers and floors) and any other information in the caption block are correct.
3. You agree that it is your responsibility to remove all personal information that is shown on any form used in the filing. This includes information pertaining to you, any party named in the filing and any other individual who has information included on the documents submitted as evidence. This information includes, but is not limited to, phone numbers, account numbers, social security numbers, routing numbers, bank accounts and tax information.
4. You have submitted, if available, your email address and cell phone number in case you need to be contacted by the court regarding the filing.

By signing this form you agree that you have read the document in full, have been given the opportunity to revise your filing and/or to ask any questions regarding the filing process.
